Clarence Integrated Care Centre (ICC) Project Update August 2009

Governance

The Commonwealth Government and Tasmania's Health Minister support progressing new governance arrangements for the GP Super Clinic (GPSC). The Minister also supports setting up a time-limited Advisory Group to:

- oversee the establishment of the GPSC as a separate legal entity
- prepare a description of the business to be provided in the GPSC
- develop criteria and process for selection of a GPSC service provider
- clarify any liabilities and make recommendations on how to address these.

The Advisory Group's recommendations will be endorsed by the Departmental Executive Team and the Minister.
This work will be led by John Ramsay Consulting in collaboration with Gavin Rose from GPV Consulting.

Consultation

We will hold another round of community information sessions in coming months to update project progress. We will contact key stakeholder groups within the Clarence community.

Please contact Catherine Featherstone if you know any community groups that would like us to address them.

Architects and user group workshops

The Project User Group has signed off on the schematic design and layout of Clarence ICC and GP Super Clinic services.

The architects are now moving into the design development phase.

The Parliamentary Standing Committee is scheduled for 24 September 2009.

Legislation requires that projects with a capital value over $5 million are submitted to the Parliamentary Standing Committee on Capital Works for assessment of need and public benefit.

Business systems

A working group has been formed to consider how the ICC will make the most effective use of information systems for patient/client records and appointments.

The first task is to document the business and clinical processes for the ICC and identify information system needs for the ICC to operate efficiently.

Primary Health Services' Anne Mullavey will work on the project initially with the assistance of a business analyst.
